

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
EASTERN DISTRICT OF WASHINGTON

BKWSPOKANE LLC, a Washington
limited liability company,

Plaintiff,

v.

FEDERAL DEPOSIT INSURANCE
CORPORATION, as receiver for Bank of Whitman,

Defendant.

NO: 12-CV-0521-TOR

ORDER DENYING PLAINTIFF'S
MOTION FOR RECONSIDERATION

BEFORE THE COURT is Plaintiff's Motion for Reconsideration to Amend/Clarify Order Granting Motion for Summary Judgment (ECF No. 137).

This matter was submitted for consideration without oral argument. The Court has reviewed the briefing and the record and files herein, and is fully informed.

///

///

///

BACKGROUND

Plaintiff BKWSPOKANE (“BKW”) seeks reconsideration of the Court’s April 2, 2014, Order on Cross Motions for Summary Judgment (ECF No. 134), denying Plaintiff’s motion and granting the motion of Defendant Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (“FDIC”).

FACTS

Before its closure, Bank of Whitman (“BOW”) was conducting business in several Eastern Washington locations, including the building at the center of the instant dispute, 618 West Riverside Avenue in Spokane (“the Building”). Plaintiff BKW purchased the entire building from BOW and entered into a long-term triple net lease back Master Lease Agreement with BOW.

On August 5, 2011, the Washington State Department of Financial Institutions closed BOW and appointed Defendant FDIC as receiver. The FDIC entered into an agreement with Columbia State Bank (“CSB”) under which CSB agreed to acquire certain portions of BOW and was granted by the FDIC an option period of 90 days to determine if it would also assume or reject certain contract and lease obligations, including the Master Lease with over 20-years remaining on that obligation. CSB ultimately decided not to assume the Master Lease. On February 27, 2012, the FDIC notified BKW that it was repudiating the contract effective June 30, 2012.

1 BKW sued the FDIC, alleging inter alia, breach of contract, and that though
2 FDIC was empowered to repudiate the lease within a reasonable period under the
3 Financial Institutions Reform, Recovery and Enforcement Act (“FIRREA”), 12
4 U.S.C. §1821(e) et seq., its repudiation was untimely. On the parties’ cross
5 motions for summary judgment, the Court granted judgment for Defendant, finding 6 that the repudiation was timely.

7 In the motion now before the Court, Plaintiff seeks reconsideration under 8 Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(e). ECF No. 137 at 1. For the reasons discussed below, the 9 motion will be denied.

10 DISCUSSION

11 A court may review a motion for reconsideration under either Federal Rule
12 of Civil Procedure 59(e) (motion to alter or amend a judgment) or Rule 60(b)
13 (relief from judgment). Sch. Dist. No. 1J v. ACandS, Inc., 5 F.3d 1255, 1262 (9th 14 Cir. 1993). “Reconsideration is appropriate if the district court (1) is presented 15 with newly discovered evidence, (2) committed clear error or the initial decision
16 was manifestly unjust, or (3) if there is an intervening change in controlling law.”
17 Id. at 1263. Reconsideration is properly denied when the movant “present[s] no 18 arguments . . . that had not already been raised” in the underlying motion. Taylor
19 v. Knapp, 871 F.2d 803, 805 (9th Cir. 1989).

1 BKW moves the court for reconsideration, arguing that the Court should
2 reconsider the its dismissal of BKW's claim without consideration of BKW's right
3 to damages suffered in reliance on the Master Lease Agreement, ECF No. 137 at 4.
4 Plaintiff argues that it "purchased the property located at 618 West Riverside,
5 Spokane, Washington for $13,980,000 based solely on the premise that Bank of 6 Whitman would enter into and properly perform under the Master Lease
7 Agreement," and that but for this agreement BKW would not have agreed to 8 purchase the building. Id. Plaintiff contends that the Court entirely disregarded this 9 argument in its order, and that FIRREA limits recoverable damages to "actual 10 direct compensatory damages," 12 U.S.C. § 1821(e)(3)(A), which include reliance
11 damages. ECF No. 137 at 4.

12 As the Court explained in its order on the parties cross motions for summary
13 judgment, ECF No. 134, under FIRREA the FDIC, as receiver has, inter alia, the 14 authority to repudiate contracts and leases:

15 In addition to any other rights a conservator or receiver may have, the 16 conservator or receiver for any insured depository institution may disaffirm or repudiate any contract or lease—

17 (A) to which such institution is a party;

18 (B) the performance of which the conservator or receiver, in the 19 conservator's or receiver's discretion, determines to be burdensome; and

(C) the disaffirmance or repudiation of which the conservator or receiver determines, in the conservator's or receiver's discretion, will promote the orderly administration of the institution's affairs.

12 U.S.C. § 1821(e)(1).

Paragraph (3), which BKW cites above, addresses “claims for damages for repudiation...in general,” and provides that damages are “limited to actual direct compensatory damages” “[e]xcept as otherwise provided in subparagraph (C) and paragraphs (4), (5), and (6)...” 12 U.S.C. § 1821(e)(3) (emphasis added). As paragraph (4) provides, “[i]f the conservator or receiver disaffirms or repudiates a lease under which the insured depository institution was the lessee, the conservator or receiver shall not be liable for any damages (other than damages determined pursuant to subparagraph (B)) for the disaffirmance or repudiation of such lease.”

12 U.S.C. § 1821(e)(4)(A) (emphasis added). Thus, as Defendant argues, the statute specifically excepts from the general rule in paragraph (3) damages for the repudiation of certain contracts or leases, such as the lease at issue. Under the damages provisions for repudiated leases, damages are limited and the lessor will:

- (i) be entitled to the contractual rent accruing before the later of the date—
 - (I) the notice of disaffirmance or repudiation is mailed; or
 - (II) the disaffirmance or repudiation becomes effective, unless the lessor is in default or breach of the terms of the lease;
- (ii) have no claim for damages under any acceleration clause or other penalty provision in the lease; and

1 (iii) have a claim for any unpaid rent, subject to all appropriate offsets and 2 defenses, due as of the date of the appointment which shall be paid in 3 accordance with this subsection and subsection (i) of this section.

4 12 U.S.C. § 1821(e)(4)(B). Thus, reliance damages are not “specifically authorized 5 under FIRREA,” as Plaintiff argues. Rather, the statute explicitly limits liability for 6 properly repudiated leases.

7 In its reply, BKW contends that a lease is a contract, and as such the 8 repudiation damages provisions of § 1821(e)(3)(A)(i) allow for reliance damages.
9 ECF No. 154 at 3 (“To suggest that the Master Lease is not a ‘contract’ is a 10 specious argument. The Court can easily confirm that the terms ‘contract,’ ‘lease,’ 11 and ‘agreement’ are used interchangeably and intermittently throughout the statute.
12 The obvious reason is that used generically, they are terms that have no distinction 13 under the law with respect to describing legal arrangements obligating parties to 14 perform terms and conditions.”).

15 This argument is unpersuasive; the terms clearly have a legal distinction. An 16 agreement is “[a] mutual understanding between two or more persons about their 17 relative rights and duties regarding past or future performances; a manifestation of 18 mutual assent by two or more persons.” Black's Law Dictionary (9th ed. 2009). A 19 contract is “[a]n agreement between two or more parties creating obligations that 20 are enforceable or otherwise recognizable at law.” Id. A lease is “[a] contract by

1 which a rightful possessor of real property conveys the right to use and occupy the 2 property in exchange for consideration.” Id. Thus, by definition, a lease is a
3 contract, and a contract is an agreement. But not all agreements are legally
4 enforceable contracts, nor are all contracts leases. The agreement between BKW
5 and BOW is titled “Master Commercial Lease Agreement” and provides that “the 6 term of this Lease shall be for 25 years” and that “Lessee’s basic rental obligation
7 shall consist of the Monthly Rent described below.” ECF No. 68-4. Thus, it fits
8 squarely into the definition of a “lease.” That the Court and parties refer to BKW’s
9 lease to BOW as a contract or an agreement (which it is) does not make it any less
10 a lease subject to FIRREA’s lease-repudiation provisions. BKW’s argument
11 produces an absurd result: if Congress had intended all leases to be analyzed
12 generally as contracts, FIRREA’s provisions regarding leases would be 13 meaningless.

14 Nor are the cases BKW cites in support of its contentions persuasive, as they
15 all relate to repudiation of contracts. See DPJ Co. Ltd. P'ship v. F.D.I.C., 30 F.3d
16 247, 250 (1st Cir. 1994) (in contract repudiation, reliance damages are “actual 17 direct compensatory damages”); MCI Commc'ns Servs., Inc. v. F.D.I.C., 808 F.
18 Supp. 2d 24, 33 (D.D.C. 2011) (costs paid “in reliance on the contract[] are 19 compensatory damages under FIRREA.”); Nashville Lodging Co. v. Resolution
20 Trust Corp., 59 F.3d 236, 246 (D.C. Cir. 1995) (“The fact that reliance damages

1 are backward-looking does not destroy their pedigree as a species of compensatory
2 relief.”).

3 Accordingly, the Court reiterates that the plain language of FIRREA
4 explicitly provides that the FDIC “shall not be liable for any damages” for proper 5 repudiation of a lease “under which the insured depository institution was the 6 lessee” other than “contractual rent” accruing before the notice of repudiation is 7 mailed or the repudiation becomes effective and any “unpaid rent” as of the date of 8 the appointment. 12 U.S.C. § 1821(e)(4). The Court found that the FDIC’s
9 repudiation was timely and therefore proper. Thus, there is no suggestion that the 10 Court’s order was in “clear error” or “manifestly unjust,” nor has Plaintiff
11 presented “newly discovered evidence” or a “change in controlling law.” See Sch.
12 Dist. No. 1J v. ACandS, Inc., 5 F.3d at 1262.

13 ACCORDINGLY, IT IS HEREBY ORDERED:

14 Plaintiff’s Motion for Reconsideration (ECF No. 137) is DENIED.

15 The District Court Executive is hereby directed to enter this Order and 16 provide copies to counsel.

17 DATED May 16, 2014.

THOMAS O. RICE
United States District Judge